

Your most powerful
tool for preventing catastrophic loss.

When a fire strikes, seconds count. Prompt response can mean the difference between a minor inconvenience and a six-month plant shut-down. Instantaneous control needs to be in reach, but well out of harm's way. At Elkhart Brass, our advanced electronic controls provide prompt and dependable control of potential crisis situations. That's just one reason why many of the biggest names in industry protect their physical investments with our electronic remote controlled monitor systems (ERCMS). They also know we have the experience and capabilities to do the entire job right — right from the start and all the way through final installation and service.
